

Apocalypse Never:

How the Abolition of Nuclear Weapons
May Actually Happen

Dr. Tad Daley (JD, PhD)
International Physicians for the Prevention of Nuclear War

Thursday
May 27, 2010
7:00 PM

Admission: Free

Hewlett Teaching Center, 201
(1.5 blocks west of The Oval)
Stanford University

The nuclear threat in its many forms – nuclear terror, nuclear accident, a nuclear crisis spinning out of control – is an enormous danger, and many world leaders have called for ridding the world of nuclear weapons. But is this an achievable goal or a utopian fantasy?

Tad Daley maintains that the abolition of nuclear weapons is both essential and achievable, and reveals in detail what we need to do to make it a reality.

Come and hear his vision how it can be done.

Sponsored by Stanford University's Department of Electrical Engineering

Co-sponsors:

League of Women Voters of Palo Alto
Los Altos Voices for Peace
Multifaith Voices for Peace and Justice
Nuclear Age Peace Foundation, Silicon Valley

Tad Daley is the Writing Fellow at IPPNW (the 1985 Nobel Peace Laureate), and author of Apocalypse Never: Forging the Path to a Nuclear Weapon-Free World.

His past experience includes working in the International Policy Department at RAND, where many Cold War Era nuclear theories were forged, and serving as a speechwriter and policy advisor to several members of Congress.

Copies of Apocalypse Never will be available for purchase at the talk.

This is the seventh in a series of Spring quarter talks at Stanford on Defusing the Nuclear Threat. For more information, see <http://TinyURL.com/ycwgpdo>.